1. POLICY STATEMENT

The purpose of this policy is to establish the Companies' commitment to anti-corruption and to ensure that their employees, suppliers, distributors, contractors, partners and other counterparties understand and reflect their individual responsibility for compliance.

The following are the basic principles of Claro Colombia's anti-corruption policy:

- Claro Colombia and any person within Claro Colombia who is empowered to act on its behalf may not themselves or through an intermediary person give, promise, offer, pay, authorize or offer to a national or foreign public servant, for the benefit of the latter or a third party, directly or indirectly, sums of money, any object of pecuniary value or other benefit or utility in exchange for the latter performing, omitting or delaying any act related to the exercise of their functions and in connection with a national and international business or transaction.
- Any director or employee of Claro Colombia must refrain from requesting, accepting or offering a gift or any unjustified benefit, to the detriment of the Companies or a third party related to them.

Such courtesies must be reported to and authorized in advance by the President, have an appropriate value, be limited to the minimum and be justified. They must correspond to the amounts authorized in the authorization levels manual and be in accordance with América Móvil's policies.

- Similarly, all gifts, travel or lodging expenses, entertainment and/or food expenses for any public or private employee, which are not prohibited by law, must correspond to the amounts authorized in the authorization levels manual and in accordance with the policies of América Móvil.
- In any case, all employees of Claro Colombia are absolutely forbidden to offer or receive directly or indirectly, through a third party or another person, presents or any kind of gift to or from a public or private servant.

- Ignorance of this policy does not preclude all company employees from complying with it.
- Employees who fail to comply with this policy will be subject to severe disciplinary action as defined by the Ethics Committee.
- Compliance with this policy is especially important because all Directors and employees are potentially criminally liable for violating the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act ("FCPA"), the Colombian Anti-Transnational Bribery Law 1778 of 2016 and the Colombian Anti-Corruption Statute Law 1474 of 2011.
- Criminal penalties could result in fines for individuals of up to US$5 million and up to 20 years imprisonment for each violation under FCPA, 650 up to 50,000 Current Legal Monthly Minimum Wages and 9 up to 15 years imprisonment under Law 1778 and Law 1474.

- The Company could face numerous penalties, including criminal indictments and fines of US$25 million or more, disgorgement of any illegal profits, prohibition from doing business with the U.S. government and the appointment of a compliance monitor to oversee its business operations under FCPA and fines of up to 200,000 Current Legal Monthly Minimum Wages, inability to contract with the Colombian State for a term of up to 20 years, publication in high circulation media and the obligation to include in the Company's web page an extract of the sanctioning administrative decision and the prohibition to receive any incentive or grant from the Government for a term of 5 years under Law 1778.
- Claro Colombia's commitment against bribery and corrupt payments is led by the Boards of Directors and Corporate Directorates of Claro Colombia and is evidenced through its Ethics and Compliance Program (hereinafter the "Program"), which is designed to assess corruption risks, implement adequate procedures, policies and controls to mitigate those risks, perform appropriate due diligence on suppliers and counterparties, educate employees and other counterparties, carry out monitoring processes to prevent non-compliance and ensure compliance with the Program.
- For the purposes of this policy, acts of corruption include unethical conduct such as bribery, collusion, facilitation payments, fraud, extortion, illicit enrichment, influence peddling, use of false information and money laundering, among others; not only if they involve a public servant, but also if they are committed by an employee, supplier, customer or contractor to the detriment of the Companies.
- Likewise, "occupational fraud", understood as the intentional use of the job position for personal enrichment through the improper use of resources or assets of the Companies, is considered an unethical conduct.
- Claro Colombia recommends as a good criterion to know if it is acceptable to receive or provide a gift, attention, payment or any entertainment expense, to ask yourself how it would look in the eyes of an external person of the Companies, on the front page of a newspaper or how you would explain it to your family.
- When employees and other third parties act on behalf of Claro Colombia, the interest of the Companies must always be placed above personal interest. In this context, employees should always keep in mind that their first professional obligation is to Claro Colombia.
- All reported exceptions will be analyzed by the Compliance Officer who will follow up and decide if any additional investigation is necessary.

2 OPERATING GUIDE

2.1 Identification of governmental and other high-risk relationships

It is the responsibility of all of the Companies' Directorates to identify and monitor their highest risk relationships, including relationships with government-owned entities, regulators, business partners, intermediaries, agents, consultants, other representatives and commercial accounts important to the Companies.

Companies should exercise special care in these types of relationships, particularly in the terms of contracting and providing/receiving gifts, entertainment or other business courtesies.

2.2 Hiring of intermediaries, agents, consultants and other representatives who interact with government entities and high-risk operations

It is important to mention that bribes are often paid through intermediaries and that bribery schemes are often initiated by intermediaries who may have their own incentives to pay bribes.

Therefore, the Companies must exercise controls to hire intermediaries, agents, consultants and other representatives who assist the Companies with the handling of high-risk relationships such as dealings with governmental entities, import and export processes, representation before important commercial accounts, representation in matters of industry laws and regulations, advice and litigation and other services provided by counterparties.

Claro Colombia employees involved in hiring intermediaries, agents, consultants, lobbyists and other representatives (including professionals such as lawyers, accountants, tax advisors, regulatory and industry advisors, etc.) acting on behalf of the Companies have a special responsibility to know with whom they are contracting and to ensure that the supplier is reliable, reputable and is not and will not be involved in corrupt activities that put the Companies at risk.

There may be signs and incidents that appear to be "warning signs" that indicate that a relationship with the third party may not be appropriate. See Annex 1.

If these warning signs or other signs appear, the proposed or approved relationship with the third party should be subject to further investigation and should be discussed with the Compliance Officer.

All intermediaries, agents, consultants and other representatives must have a written agreement with anti-corruption clauses that include the following:

- Indications that the third party will comply with Claro Colombia's Anti-Corruption Policy and will not engage in corrupt activities on behalf of the Companies.

- Requirement to the third party according to risk levels, certify compliance with Claro Colombia's Anti-Corruption Policy and declare existing conflicts of interest.
- Language that allows Claro Colombia to exercise audit rights to determine compliance with Claro Colombia's Anti-Corruption Policy.
- Language that allows Claro Colombia to terminate the agreement and withhold payments if it believes that the third party has violated its Anti-Corruption Policy or any applicable anti-corruption law.
- The obligation to cooperate within investigation processes in case of violations of Claro Colombia's Anti-Corruption Policy.
- The obligation to notify Claro Colombia of any subcontracting and the submission of all information related to the subcontractor before there is any type of engagement.
- The obligation that invoices should include a clear and specific description of all invoiced items and in the event of subcontracting, the obligation to attach clearly detailed invoices from the subcontractor.
- The obligation to submit evidence of services rendered.

All agreements must be reviewed and approved by the Legal and Corporate Affairs Directorate to ensure appropriate language, approvals and terms and anti-corruption clauses.

Certifications of compliance signed by the third party must be filed in the third party's folder.

Claro Colombia should not have agreements without a termination date or with an indeterminate duration.

2.1.1 Due diligence required

Contracting with intermediaries, agents, consultants and other representatives that assist the Companies in their dealings with government entities, important commercial accounts or for industry regulatory matters, represent a high risk, therefore Claro Colombia performs the following actions when contracting with these third parties:

- These third parties must sign the certification of compliance with Claro Colombia's Anti-Corruption Policy, which are managed by the risk management areas. This information is subject to a background investigation, which may be carried out by one of the companies or by a firm hired by them.

- In the event of any discrepancy in the qualification of the third party, the Compliance Officer must be consulted, who will verify the information and, if deemed necessary, will conduct an investigation to expand the information.
- The risk management areas shall keep a file documenting the due diligence process and the approval process for contracting third parties such as intermediaries, agents, consultants or other representatives.
- With respect to temporary unions or consortiums in which any of the Claro Colombia Companies participate, the Compliance Officer must propose due diligence procedures with an anti-corruption approach to be developed by the Companies or by an experienced third party and ensure that the representatives of the business partner know and accept the Program's guidelines and comply with the Anti-Corruption Policy.

2.2.2 Appropriate remuneration

Claro Colombia performs a fee analysis to ensure that the payments to be made to the intermediary, agent, consultant or other representative are appropriate and justifiable for legitimate services rendered or goods supplied, to be paid through banking channels, in accordance with the "Make General Purchases" procedure and/or the ANNEXES VARIABLE REMUNERATION POLICY STRATEGIC ACCOUNT COMPANIES & ANNEXES VARIABLE REMUNERATION POLICY MULTINATIONALS that are in force, as the case may be.

Likewise, there is a remuneration and commission payment policy that establishes the payment process for the companies' employees, following the "Plan, Define and Communicate Indicator Goals (Management and Remuneration)" Process.

Additionally, there is the "Commissions Policy - Integrated", which guarantees and controls the payment, commission discounts and incentives to direct and indirect sales channels.

2.3 Gifts, meals, travel, lodging and entertainment

All gifts, travel or lodging expenses, entertainment and/or food expenses that are not prohibited by law must have the required approvals and comply with the following principles:

- There must be a business purpose: All expenditures must have a justifiable business purpose. Under no circumstances should gifts, food, entertainment, travel or lodging be given for the purpose of obtaining something in return or to improperly influence or gain an undue advantage.
- No cash gifts or presents, bonuses or cash awards should be given to government entities, public servants (domestic or foreign). Likewise, any counterparty or third party that has a business relationship with Claro.

- For the delivery of benefits to third parties and counterparties, actions and controls have been established following the “Process of Approval and Control of commercial courtesies and demonstration signs”, “Manual of Revenue Assurance for control of demo or gratuitous courtesy signs”.
- Complete and appropriate supporting documentation: All expenses must be supported by the necessary documentation in accordance with Claro Colombia's policies and applicable legislation and be duly reflected in the accounting books and records.
- Appropriate and approved: All gifts, invitations, meals and entertainment must correspond to the amounts authorized in the authorization levels manual and in accordance with América Móvil's policies.
- Handling of payment requests: If a public servant directly or indirectly (through a third-party intermediary) requests a payment or anything of value from a Claro employee, the employee must politely, but firmly, refuse it. Likewise, Claro employees must ensure that all third parties who are acting on behalf of the Companies also refuse to make such payments.
If any Claro employee receives a request from any person, entity or government official to make an improper payment, he or she must immediately report it to the Compliance Officer or the Ethics Line.

See Annex 2 for examples regarding appropriate and inappropriate gifts, entertainment and hospitality.

Whenever questions arise, Employees, Intermediaries, Agents, Consultants or other Representatives must consult with the Compliance Officer in advance, via email, telephone or in person.

2.4 Facilitation payments

Facilitation payments are defined as payments to public servants that are intended to expedite, avoid or delay routine governmental actions.

Such payments are generally for minor amounts and often occur in dealings with customs, immigration or tax officials, when obtaining permits, licenses or other official documents, and in other circumstances.

These payments are difficult to monitor and there is sometimes ambiguity as to whether such payments are legal or constitute bribes.

Facilitation payments are strictly prohibited within Claro Colombia under this Policy.

2.5 Political contributions

The Foreign Corrupt Practices Act ("FCPA") and the Colombian Anti-Transnational Bribery Law 1778 of 2016 restrict or even prohibit political campaign financing.

In some circumstances political campaign financing could be considered exchanges of special favors or business advantages and therefore constitute violations of anti-corruption laws.

Claro Colombia or any person within the Companies who is empowered to act on its behalf, shall refrain from financing any type of political campaign for the Presidency of the Republic, Governorships, Mayorships or any other position in the Public Administration that involves a popular election process, with contributions in excess of those established by the laws applicable to the matter.

The financing of political campaigns must be previously approved by the President and the Compliance Officer and will be subject to a detailed analysis due to the legal risks they represent both under the FCPA and under Law 1778 and other applicable anti-corruption laws.

2.6 Donations

Donations must be made in line with the needs of the Companies and in their best interest and only for the purpose of supporting an ongoing legitimate cause administered by the social organization.

Claro Colombia's policy prohibits social donations that are made with the intention of influencing the decision of a government official, exchanging special favors or having a business advantage.

Prior to a donation, it is necessary to perform a thorough due diligence process of the entity that will receive the donation.

The elements of a proper due diligence process are as follows:

- Analysis of the purpose of the donation.
- Understanding the type of organization. For example: whether it is non-profit.
- Identification of the owners, directors and officers and their relationship to any government officials.
- Research on the organization's reputation, corporate governance and anti-corruption commitments.

- Form of donation (cash or in-kind).

If in the due diligence process, any potentially inappropriate donation is observed, Claro Colombia employees must immediately consult the Compliance Officer via email, telephone or in person.

If any of the following situations are observed, it could be an act of corruption and must be reported to the Compliance Officer or the Ethics Committee:

- The organization that will receive the donation refuses to provide proper documentation or suggests that the donation can only be made anonymously.
- The donation is directed to a bank account in another country or to a beneficiary other than the entity being donated to.
- An officer, director or employee of the organization receiving the donation has family or other connections to government officials.
- A government official establishes the amount of the donation and the purported recipient or solicits the donation directly or indirectly.
- The donation is made with the assumption or understanding that it may influence a decision of a government official.
- The organization receiving the donation is providing gifts or travel, lodging, meals or entertainment to government officials in connection with its charitable activities.
- The donation will be used, in whole or in part, to hire third parties with connections to government officials or who have been identified or suggested by government officials.

2.7 Mergers and acquisitions due diligence

Mergers and acquisitions are of particular concern under anti-corruption laws. An acquiring company that fails to conduct an effective and thorough due diligence review of the merged or acquired company or companies runs the risk of being liable to government authorities for past or continuing violations committed by the merged or acquired company.

In view of the above, it is Claro Colombia's policy in merger or acquisition processes to take reasonable and appropriate actions to identify past incidents of corruption or corrupt payments made by the merged or acquired company.

Due diligence may include assessing the corruption risk profile of the merged or acquired company or companies, background investigations of key officers and directors, review and analysis of documents related to corruption risks, interviews of key employees, and forensic accounting procedures designed to identify potential illicit or improper payments.

Claro Colombia must also obtain appropriate representations and written assurances from the merged or acquired company or companies or the seller in order to obtain confidence and assurance that the merged or acquired company or companies or the seller does not violate, and has not in the past violated, anti-corruption laws and that if it does, it will be willing to assume responsibility for any such violations.

3. ANTI-CORRUPTION FINANCIAL CONTROLS

Claro Colombia has strong financial controls over its petty cash funds, accounts payable and vendor payment processes, as well as to monitor travel and entertainment expenses that employees submit as expense reimbursements.

These controls cover not only expenses or transactions incurred by employees of the Companies but also expenses incurred by third parties that are reimbursable.

The Compliance Officer, together with Internal Audit or an independent third party, will conduct annual anti-corruption audits designed to detect and prevent potential corrupt activities that violate this policy.

4. EDUCATION AND TRAINING

Claro Colombia will communicate this policy to employees and provide anti-corruption training to key employees involved in sales, purchasing, logistics, finance and accounting on an annual basis. Similarly, third parties acting on behalf of the Companies shall be made aware of this policy and receive periodic training.

Records of each training session shall be maintained by the Corporate Human Resources Directorate.

5. DEALING WITH SUPPLIERS

Employees must avoid forming any type of personal relationship with suppliers and other third parties that may create conflicts of interest, affect objectivity or give the appearance of improper conduct. In particular, making or receiving payments to suppliers, including especially those that are state-owned entities, could be an act of corruption. Relations with suppliers must be professional and suppliers must share, promote and adhere to the values and principles of Claro Colombia.
